SPI Thurmond Endorses Distance Learning for Safety Sake

State Superintendent of Schools Tony Thurmond remarked on the purpose of distance learning.

Everyone shares the desire to reopen schools and agrees that the best place for children to learn and thrive is in the classroom connected with caring teachers and staff. We also understand that schools are more than a place of learning: They provide critical necessities like meals, relationships with caring adults, and support for working parents," said Thurmond. "But we can only open schools if it is safe to do so. As the largest educational agency in the country, our stance has been consistent during this pandemic: Science, data, and safety must guide any decision about reopening a school. The health and safety of our students and staff is too important to risk."

Governor Newson Takes Action on Los Angeles County

At his Friday news conference Governor Gavin Newsom ordered counties on the state's coronavirus watch list to shut down school campuses this fall, at least to begin the school year. The 32 counties on the list, which include Los Angeles and most of Southern California, must switch to virtual instruction only.

The Montebello USD's distance learning plan is consistent with the Governor's order.
